The Future of Sequence Modeling: A Peek into Modern Speech/Language Technology

Mark Hasegawa-Johnson is an associate professor of electrical and computer engineering and a full-time faculty member in the Artificial Intelligence and Speech and Language Engineering groups at the Beckman Institute at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.   His research is in acoustic phonetics, audio signal processing and speech recognition, and speech and auditory physiology. He is recipient of numerous teaching awards, a National Science Foundation CAREER Award, and the National Institutes of Health National Research Service Award.   Dr. Johnson-Hasegawa was a Frederic Vinton Hunt Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Acoustical Society of America.   He received a Ph.D. in electrical engineering and computer science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
