

Active Life Home – Technology Supported Living at Home

Olli Nuuttila, CEO, Active Life Village Ltd

Mr. Nuuttila is addressing the possibilities to support independent living at home especially for elderly people. Active Life Village has been developing a digital solution infrastructure for monitoring and alerting, as well as for enabling people to communicate with their social network. In many cases there are three fundamental issues with elderly people living alone: lack of sense of security and mental safety, as well as loneliness. The solution answers the question “Is everything OK at home”, and if not, makes the necessary decisions to act. The solution is a framework in which multiple companies with their own products can join. Also necessary service system is enabled with the solution.
